To Wed—Ceremony This Afternoon at the Bride's Home—Both are Quite Popular.

Mr. Patrick Henry Atkinson, a well known and popular telegraph operator employed at the Van Dusen-Ahrens commission house, and Miss Winnie Dale, eldest daughter of Col. H. B. Dale, of the county, were licensed to marry today.

Mr. Atkinson's home is in Raleigh, N. C., but he has been in Paducah for the past year, and has made a host of friends by his excellent qualities.

Miss Dale is very popular in Paducah, where she resided several years with her parents, and is a pretty and charming young lady. The ceremony will be performed by the pastor of Palestine church.

The happy couple will have the best wishes of a host of friends.

The Prince of Wales Regularly Becomes King Edward VII and Emperor of India.

FOREIGN COURTS MOURNING

There are No Funeral Arrangements as Yet and Won't be Soon Declared.

THE QUEEN DIED OF CANCER, IT SEEMS

London, Jan. 23.—The proclamation of the death of Queen Victoria and the succession of King Edward VII. was issued immediately upon the queen's death by the Premier, Lord Salisbury, and the archbishops of Canterbury, with the sanction of the Privy Council.

It is being made public throughout the realm by the Lord Mayors, the Lord Lieutenants of counties, etc.

The proclamation reads:

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty God to call to his more merciful and eternal rest, Queen Victoria, of blessed and glorious memory, by whose decease the imperial crown of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland is solely and rightfully come to the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward. We therefore, the Lords spiritual and temporal of this realm, being here with those of her late Majesty's Privy Council, with numbers of other principal gentlemen of quality, with the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and citizens of London, do hereby, with one voice and consent of tongue and heart, publish and proclaim that the high and mighty Prince Albert Edward now, by the death of our late sovereign of happy memory, becomes our only lawful and rightful liege Lord Edward by grace of God, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, defender of the faith to whom we acknowledge all faith and constant obedience, with all hearty and humble affection, beseeching God, by whom kings and queens do reign, to bless our royal King Edward with long and happy years to reign over us.

London, Jan. 23.—The instant that the queen died the Prince of Wales became king, and the principle that the succession never lapses.

Within an hour he was waited on by Marquis Salisbury, the Prime Minister, and the Archbishop of Canterbury, representing state and church. They administered the oath to the new king and the king legally swore to govern his people according to the statutes of parliament and the laws of the land. He also swore to maintain the laws of God, the true profession of the gospel and to preserve the settlement of the established church.

A few hours later the king received the members of his Privy Council. There are about 150 in number and include all the royal dukes and ministers and prominent nobles.

The queen's death will be proclaimed by the king by regular proclamation and through the official gazette and other channels of state.

London, Jan. 23.—The specific malady from which the queen suffered was of an intestinal character, and it is generally understood that her trouble was of a cancerous nature, which, of course, precluded all hopes of recovery.

It was a malady similar to the one with which the Empress Frederick is afflicted, and it may be remembered that it was a cancerous disease that likewise carried off the Duke of Coburg, second son of the queen, last summer.

The only consolation which remains for the queen's children and near relatives is that she was spared the agonizing sufferings that are rendering the deathbed of Empress Frederick at Friedrichschoff as much of a lingering martyrdom as the last few months of the life of her husband, Emperor Frederick, for the queen is in a state of complete mental as well as physical collapse. The doctors described it as "extreme physical prostration."

Added to the other ailments of the queen was her almost complete loss of sight, which, dating from last Sunday, caused the famous German oculist, Prof. Pagenstecher, to be summoned in hot haste from Wiesbaden.

London, Jan. 23.—All the morning papers appear in heavy mourning borders, with editorial eulogistic of the dead queen and recalling the leading events and characteristics of her reign. Few political references as to the future are made.

The body of Queen Victoria was embalmed last night and will probably be taken to Windsor Saturday. The coffin arrived last evening from London.

London, Jan. 23.—The king in being sworn into office took the title of Edward VII, King of England and Emperor of India.

All courts are in mourning.

There are no funeral arrangements as yet and none will be announced for a day or so.

It is, however, understood, the body will lie in state in London for several days and then find, of course, a resting place in Westminster Abbey, beside the body of her husband, Prince Consort Albert.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The senate yesterday afternoon, after the close of the executive session, on motion of Senator Allison, adopted the following resolution of sympathy on the death of the queen:

"Resolved, That the death of her royal and imperial majesty, Victoria, of noble virtues and great renown, is sincerely deplored by the senate of the United States."

The president at 3:30 p. m. sent a cable message of condolence to King Edward VII., the contents of which will not, for the present, be given out.

It was decided to accept the information conveyed by the press dispatches, in lieu of official notification from Ambassador Choate, which had not at that time reached the white house.

Social Washington will be seriously affected by the demise of the queen of England, and already arrangements are making to cancel many of the functions scheduled for the balance of the season.

The close marital relations existing between the court of Great Britain and other European powers, will make the death of the queen a family, as well as a political period of mourning.

MADE OVER

Magisterial Jurisdiction Changed by McCracken County's Commissioners.

REPORT FINISHED TODAY

The City Districts Take in 5,000 People, and the County 2,750 People.

THE WORK REQUIRED ONE WEEK

The redistricting committee appointed by Judge Tully several days ago to change the magisterial districts of the county has completed its report, which, duly signed, has been filed in the county court.

The changes were necessitated by the extension of the city limits a few years ago, which extension took in a portion of the districts in the county. The report of changes formulated by the committee, which had been in session over a week, are quite voluminous, but briefly stated, the changes will be about as follows:

The first magisterial district, presided over by Justice J. C. Sheehan, will extend to Tennessee street, taking in Mechanicsburg.

The second, Justice J. H. Little's, is extended to Monroe and Seventh streets.

The third, Justice W. H. Hooks', is extended to Monroe and Seventh, thence to Madison, and out Twelfth to Clay street.

The fifth, Justice S. B. Shemwell, begins at the Illinois Central railroad and goes to the Graves county line instead of Clark's River.

The sixth, Justice Dunaway's, is moved to take in everything from Lovelaceville road to Ballard county line.

The seventh, Justice Hooker's, is moved to take in everything from Lovelaceville to the Cairo road.

The eighth, Justice Bryant's, takes in the remainder of the territory.

The districts inside the city limits embrace an average population of 5,000 people, and those in the county an average of 2,750 people.

GEORGE SMITH

HE IS SEEN IN BALLARD BUT NOT CAUGHT.

Mr. El C. Terrell, while down near Earlow City, Ballard county, saw George Smith, who has been so badly wanted here on a charge of assaulting Viola Green, a few days ago.

Marshal Collins wrote the sheriff and gave the name of the man for whom Smith was working and all, and has since been patiently waiting for the arrest, but it has not transpired. It is now thought that Smith discovered Mr. Terrell about the same time Mr. Terrell discovered Smith, and lost no time in getting out of the locality.

THE MINERS' TROUBLE AT BOKTOWN.

Earlington, Ky., Jan. 23.—After the firing into the union miners, marching in violation of the sheriff's proclamation, by two deputy sheriffs with a posse of three near Carbondale mines Monday afternoon, the men who had participated in the marching scattered in every direction, and Boktown, where the mass meeting had been held in the morning, was deserted in a little while. The miners seemed to fear another attack and sought refuge in flight. Sam Chapel, colored, of Indiana; W. B. Kissinger, of Central City, and George Nicholas, colored, of Muhlenberg county, three of the miners who were among the leading spirits in the movement, were arrested at Nortonville by Deputy Sheriff Liddle and a posse. Each was arraigned. These men were given a preliminary hearing before County Judge Hall this morning and were placed under $200 bond each to appear for trial Friday.

POLICE COURT

COAL THIEF FINED FOR THROWING AT THE COAL MAN.

The Mays Case Was Not Ready for Trial This Morning—A Short Deck to-day.

Arthur Brewer and Chas. Mitchell, colored, were presented in Judge Sanders' court this morning on a charge of throwing rocks at Wm. Roeder of the Chesterfield coal company. Brewer pleaded guilty and was fined $20 and costs and a case for petty larceny was continued until tomorrow, if he repudies his fine, or until he serves it. Mitchell was acquitted, the evidence showing that he was not implicated.

John Wesley Mayes, colored, charged with maliciously assaulting Heaster Stovall with a poker last November, was not ready for trial and the case was continued.

Hertbert Holland is the name of a small boy fined not long ago for cutting a big belt at the cordage factory. He thought Alonzo Henderson told on him, and for several weeks had been "laying for him." Day before yesterday he met him and tried to provoke a fight near the Jefferson school, and struck Henderson, who had him arrested. Holland is a very bad boy and Judge Sanders gave him some very good advice, dismissing him with a reprimand.

Will Ashland, colored, for using insulting language towards Mollie Weatherford, was fined $3 and costs.

Prof. Gray, who invented the telephone, is dead. There was a coincidence in the fact that he was perfecting a mode of sound transmission by means of bells beneath the sea and his great invention, the telephone, is the recognized discovery of one Bell, whose name it bears. The bells clearly owe the deceased a much honor.

In the army reorganization bill there is nothing of which any citizen may be afraid, while the general points to be covered for the benefit of the present necessities of the government in the Philippines and elsewhere are provided for. The net is to be taken as the beginning of a more thorough reorganization of the army service which will increase the efficiency of the army establishment and at the same time will make it more popular. Both of these desired ends can in time be accomplished.

Though the Register failed to learn that the queen of England was sick almost unto death for several days it finally learned that she died. The News, however, declared her death near 80 hours before dissolution took place and after death did occur announced she expired 24 hours and over before the sad accident really happened. If papers are so tardy and inaccurate on important events what can the people expect of them on smaller occurrences? If the public wants the news when it is news and desires to keep posted on accurate local, domestic and foreign intelligence they must read The Sun. Its contemporaries can't fill the bill.

The Prince of Wales, as was, is now King Edward VII. of England. The formalities of ascending the throne is the form merely. The death of Queen Victoria made the heir the king in fact. As one of the world's leading crown heads there is greater interest than ever before in the new ruler—greater interest in the king of England than in the Prince of Wales. But as the latter becomes the former—the king is yet but the prince in another role—the personnel of each is the same. The Sun, therefore, devotes some space today to the life of the prince as indicative of the new king's future, thought it may be to change the world hopes for will come into the life of Edward VII.

Congress doesn't propose to be hoodwinked by the West Pointers' resolution to be good hereafter. The body recalls the fact that resolutions made so near the first of the year are brittle ones and will adjust matters by putting a penny as a "foot note." Congress, in short, through the committee which has been investigating the country's bad lot of its pretending to be soldiers, will recommend the enactment of a statute against hazing, providing for the expulsion of cadets if found guilty of the offense, and debarring them from reappointment or from holding commissions in the army. This decision of the committee will be applauded by all discipline respecters and only criticized, if criticized at all, by the tenders of the land.

There are many reasons, perhaps, why there should be minor marriage and divorce laws that there are reasons why each state should be allowed to regulate these matters for itself. Admitting that the great institution of marriage is involved it also is to be admitted that if the people of a state are not ready for certain

KIND OF HUSBAND

I Should Choose For My Daughter.

(By Courtesy of "The Christian Herald," New York.)

A CHRISTIAN EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

(By Mrs. Francis E. Clark.)

Is it not a difficult question to ask of one who is spending the greater part of her time in training up future husbands for other people's daughters? As a preliminary step I went word to half a dozen college girls of my acquaintance, to know what kinds of husbands they would choose, and with one voice they assured me that they did not want any husbands. This put a summary stop to my investigations in that direction, and quite took my breath away. But I did not believe a word of it. I next appealed to my own mother to see what kind of a husband she would have chosen for me.

"My sister," she said, "was once asked, 'If you were required to choose between a Christian man with a quick, bad temper, and a man who made no pretensions to religion, but who was equal in intelligence, position and culture to the other, and whose disposition was known to be amiable, which would you choose?' Not a fair question, you say. So thought my sister; but when pressed for answer she replied: 'I would marry neither of them unless I loved him beyond everything else in the world. In that case I think I should want to help the Christian to overcome his hot temper. If I were to choose the pleasant, winsome, irreligious man, I should, by violating my own religious convictions and training, show him to be inconsistent. A Christian character myself, that I could hardly hope to draw him to my Savior, and I should very likely lose my own warmth and soul in Christian duty.' Shall I decide then that, first of all, my daughter's choice should be, or mine for her, a truly Christian man, one whose life and talents and property, if he has any, are consecrated to his Master. He must not be morose or quick tempered or selfish. He must be well educated, warm-hearted, sympathetic and amiable. He should honor his Master by a cheerful face."

Certainly then the man I would choose for my daughter, if I were so fortunate as to have a daughter, must standard in matrimonial matters no state law will likely be able to force them to accept a standard they do not want. Marriage is largely a matter of custom and sentiment. A marriage which in one age of the country and in one locality would be considered proper in others would be considered barbarous. This is true at the present time in the United States today and public sentiment regulates these matters. While a higher degree of civilization in one portion of the country might demand one standard of marriage requirements it is a far different matter for this portion of the country to insist that all the rest of the country accept its standard, although perhaps it is the only correct standard. The marriage relation and all that concerns it must be kept as close to the people of the several states as possible. The purpose of it all will be possible with a pure people and with a pure people only.

THERE MAY BE FUN

IN LIVINGSTON COUNTY BE-FORE THE "PRIMARY TICKET" WINS.

Says the Benton Tribune: The political situation in Livingston county is growing warmer than that which characterized the recent Democratic primary. Some Democrats are dissatisfied over the result, and the same blood curdling feeling exists between this and the Landrum factions.

The result of the primary was altogether unsatisfactory to many. The Chamberland river divides Livingston county, and although the north side has the largest vote, she didn't get a taste in the recent primary. In other words, no "plums" fell on the north side of the river.

The north side claims that the Smithland, or the south side of the river "cheque" get all the offices, in saying nothing of their being defeated in getting the county court house centrally located in the county a few years ago. The Republicans and Independents Democrats have decided to hold a mass convention in Smithland in April and nominate a county ticket as well as a candidate for representative.

The state for county offices is made up as follows: County Judge, Kit Kendall; Smithland; Wm. Bishop, Carverville, sheriff; Frank Coffey, Driskill precinct, county clerk; Harman Sedberry, Smithland, county attorney; M. L. Mayhugh, Smithland, jailer. The contest for county offices in Livingston when the two tickets are arrayed against each other promises to be one more exciting than ever. It is openly asserted by the enemies of Lastrum that he will be beaten for county clerk by the fusion ticket.

CARRIED TOO FAR.

THE FEAR OF BEING RECEIVED OR HUMILIATED PREVENTS MANY PEOPLE FROM TRYING A GOOD MEDICINE.

Stomach troubles are so common and in most cases so delicate to cure, that people are apt to look with suspicion on any remedy claiming to be a radical permanent cure for dyspepsia and indigestion. Many such people pride themselves on their astuteness in never being humbugged, especially in medicines.

This fear of being humbugged can be carried too far, so far in fact, that many people suffer for years with weak digestion rather than risk a little time and money in faithfully testing the claims made for a remedy so reliable and universally used as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Now Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are vastly different in one important respect from ordinary patent medicines for the reason that they are not a secret patent medicine; no secret is made of the ingredients, but analysis shows them to contain the natural digestive ferments, pure aseptic pepsin (government test) (Hollen Seal and distaste). They are not enthusiastic neither do they act powerfully on any particular organ, but they cure indigestion on the common sense plan of digesting the food eaten, thoroughly before it has time to ferment, sour and cause the mischief. This is the only secret of their success.

Cathartic pills never have and never can cure indigestion and stomach troubles, because they not only on the bowels, whereas the whole trouble is in the stomach.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets taken after meals, digest the food. That is all there is to it. Food, not digested, or half digested, is poison, as it creates gas, acidity, headaches, palpitation of the heart, loss of flesh and appetite and many other troubles, which are often called by some other name.

They are sold by druggists everywhere in the United States, Great Britain and Canada.

ENGLAND'S NEW KING.

Albert Edward, known for more than half a century as the Prince of Wales, and now summoned to the throne of the mightiest empire in all history, over which he will reign as Edward VII., was born on November 9, 1841. The second child and the eldest son of Queen Victoria, his advent into the world was greeted with great rejoicing. As the first child of the royal couple, now the Empress Dowager of Germany, had proved to be a girl, the British nation was naturally anxious that the second should be a boy.

When the Queen's confinement was expected Prince Albert sent his couriers in hot haste from Buckingham Palace to the various dignitaries of church and state, whose presence at the expected birth of a possible heir is demanded by royal etiquette. They gathered together in the anteroom close by the Queen's bed chamber. Among them were archbishops and bishops, arrayed in silk and velvet and gorged with orders of the garter, headed by the Prime Minister, nurses and doctors by the score. For four hours this motley assembly awaited the event. Their patience was rewarded. When it was announced that the hopes and wishes of a nation had been fulfilled and that a boy had been born there was universal gratulation. Prelates and statesmen embraced one another with uncontrolled effusiveness. Cannon from the grounds without thundered the news to all the surrounding districts. Thousands of church bells took up the glad tidings and pealed out the announcement to an expectant nation. In the morning the Privy Council met in state to ordain prayer and thanksgiving from one end of the country to the other.

A few weeks later, on the occasion of the Prince's baptism in the royal chapel of Windsor, he was shown from the balcony to a huge crowd of persons who went wild with delight. The boyhood of the Prince was uneventful. His early education was conducted at home under the tutelage of the Rev. H. M. Birch, rector of Prestwich, Mr. Gibbs, the barrister at law, the Rev. C. F. Tarver and Mr. H. W. Fisher. He then studied for a session at Eton, and later entered Christ Church, Oxford. Here he attended public lectures for a year, and afterward resided for three or four terms at Trinity college, Cambridge, for the same purpose.

His earliest appearance in a leading part on any public occasion was in 1859 at the laying of the foundation stone of the Lambeth School of Arts at Vauxhall. After the death of his father in December, 1861, he naturally became the most desirable functionary at all ceremonies in which beneficent or charitable undertakings were to be recognized by royal approval. This work has ever since occupied a large share of his time and has always been performed with dignity, tact and patience. Indeed, no prince of any country has ever personally exerted himself more faithfully to render services of this sort to the community. The multiplicity and variety of his engagements on behalf of local and special enterprises involved a sacrifice of ease and leisure which few men of high rank would care to make.

In the summer of 1860 the prince paid a visit to Canada and the United States. Everywhere he was received with boundless enthusiasm. He danced at a ball given in his honor at Washington, where he was cordially welcomed by President Buchanan. In 1862, accompanied by Dean Stanley, he made a journey to the east, including a visit to Jerusalem. The young prince was now of a marriageable age. Speculation was rife as to who would be the lady of his choice. The question was settled in the early part of 1863, when his engagement was announced to Princess Alexandra, the eldest daughter of the King of Denmark. She was three years younger than the prince, and though comparatively poor, was beautiful and accomplished. The marriage was celebrated in St. George's Chapel, Windsor Castle, on March 10, 1863.

The prince made his maiden speech in the house of lords in 1864. It was in support of a motion of the latter housing of the poor. He was subsequently one of the commission appointed to consider the matter. He is a fervent sportsman, and has never been without a string of thoroughbred racing horses. Several of them, including Flaxford II. and Persimmon, have won the derby. He is as fond of a good dog as of a good horse. His kennels at Sandringham are fourteen in number, built of brick and iron, with every modern improvement that architects and dog fanciers could suggest.

As a social factor in England the prince has always been supreme. Ward McAllister called him "the great social dictator." It was largely through his influence that many Americans—a nation whom he has always liked—have received their culture into the inner circles of the British aristocracy. Nevertheless, the social and fashionable side of his life has been more of duty than a pleasure to him. He has always been most content when surrounded by a circle of his old friends at his palace, in Sandringham, a small village in the county of Norfolk. There he has lived the life of an English country gentleman.

The affection and esteem in which the prince has been held was never better exemplified than in December, 1871, when he was attacked by typhoid fever, and for some weeks hung between life and death. The anxiety of the public was intense, and the news of his recovery was greeted with great joy. On his first appearance in public to take part in the memorable "Thanksgiving service" in St. Paul's cathedral, on February 27, 1872, the streets along the line of his route were crowded with a cheering multitude.

He has had five children, the eldest of whom, Albert Victor Christian Edward, Duke of Clarence and Avondale, was born January 8, 1864, and died in January, 1892. The second son, George Frederick Ernest Albert, Duke of York, born June 3, 1865, married Princess Mary Teck July 6, 1893. Louise Victoria Alexandra Dagmar, born February 20, 1867, married the Duke of Fife in 1889. Victoria Alexandra Olga Marie was born June 6, 1868, and Maud Charlotte Mary Victoria, born November 26, 1869, married Prince Charles, the second son of the Crown Prince of Denmark, on July 22, 1896.

many years in the house of representatives after he had been president. There would be no great coming down if a man who had been a candidate for the presidency should get to be postmaster. The most respectable citizens often serve as postmasters when they get a chance.

The oath administered in a Scotch court of justice is much more impressive than that of any other country. A Healthy Wife..... is a husband's inspiration. A healthy, half-dressed woman, capably when she is the mother of a family, is a source of joyousness in the home. I am surprised at the number of women who find their energies are so low that they cannot do all they wish to do. I have seen her sleep and her sleep is so deep that she often wakes up in the morning and finds her face so pale and her eyes so red that she often wonders what has happened to her. I have seen her face so pale and her eyes so red that she often wonders what has happened to her. I have seen her face so pale and her eyes so red that she often wonders what has happened to her.

Change of Life
Alton, Ky., March 27, 1900.
I was bedfast for four months and could not stand on my feet. I finally got so weak and nervous I could not sit up in bed. I lost flesh until I looked like a skeleton and gave up hope of ever getting well. I thought I would die. My illness was pronounced falling of the womb and nervous trouble. A lady friend of mine who had used Wine of Cardui recommended it to me so I got a bottle. When I had taken one bottle I could walk across the room and when I had taken the fourth bottle I could do all my household work and washing and ironing. I have had health and strength enough to do all my work since that. I am in the change of life now and have been for two years. Wine of Cardui has relieved me wonderfully.
Mrs. MOLLIE FRIST.

WINE OF CARDUI
The change of life is a critical time for a woman. Many healthy women become invalids because this period is not passed safely. Then their declining years are few and full of sickness. The change of life comes to the average woman soon after she passes the age of 43. It is then that menstruation becomes irregular and gradually ceases to appear. A woman with weak organs has much to fear during this ordeal, but the dangers may be overcome by taking Wine of Cardui. Wine will regulate all serious menstrual disorders. It will strengthen the ligaments which hold the womb in place and drive out every trace of the dread hemorrhage. It is necessary that a woman meet the change of life in a healthy state. Mrs. Frist bears testimony to the effective manner in which Wine of Cardui prepared her for the ordeal. Wine of Cardui will help you as wonderfully as it helped her. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles.

TRUE NOBLENESS.

For this true nobleness I seek in vain. In woman and in man I find it not; I almost weary of my earthly lot. My life springs are dried up with burning pain. Then find it not? I pray thee, look again— Look inward, through the depths of thine own soul. How is it with thee? Art thou sound and whole? Doth narrow search show thee no earthy stain? Be noble and the nobleness that lies In other u.s.s. sleeping, but never dead, Will rise in majesty to meet thine own. Then wilt thou see it gleam in many eyes. Then wilt thou light around thy path be shed, And thou wilt nevermore be sad and lone.

—James Russell Lowell.

WOMAN IN EPIGRAM.

The woman who is resolved to be respected can make herself to be so, even amid an army of soldiers.—Cervantes.

A woman's preaching is like a dog's walking on his hind legs. It is not done well, but you are surprised to find it done at all.—Johnson.

Woman's power is over the affections. A beautiful dominion is hers, but she risks its forfeiture when she seeks to extend it.—Dove.

No man knows what the wife of his bosom is—no man knows what a ministering angel is—until he has gone with her through the fiery trials of this world.—Washington Irving.

If you would make a pair of good shoes take for the sole the tongue of a woman; it never wears out.—Alsatian Proverb.

The highest mark of esteem a woman can give a man is to ask his friendship, and the most signal proof of her indifference is to offer him hers.—Anonymous.

Men bestow compliments only on women who deserve none.—Bach.

A beautiful woman with the qualities of a noble man is the most perfect thing in nature.—La Bruyere.

In wishing to control her empire, woman destroys it.—Cassidy.

It is difficult for a woman to keep a secret; and I know more than one man who is a woman.—Lafontaine.

The woman who throws herself at a man's head will soon find her place at his feet.—Dequoy.

Here's a record breaker for the railroads to "huck" against. The official report shows that three million three hundred and two thousand nine hundred and eighteen passengers were carried on steamboats on the Ohio river and its tributaries during the year 1900. Only two of this great number lost their lives by falling overboard, and eight otherwise.

Thirty-four new steamboats were added to the Ohio and tributary river service, and twelve went out of existence.

During the fiscal year ending October 31, the Monongahela River Consolidated Coal and Coke company shipped south in the neighborhood of 65,000,000 bushels of coal, while the total mined was about 185,000,000 bushels. Since navigation opened this season the same company has shipped close to 30,000,000 bushels, which is almost half as much as the company shipped in 1900. If there is a good stage of water up until June, to enable the shipment of coal boats as well as barges, the company will probably market 100,000,000 bushels of coal in the south.

The Joe Fowler, from Evansville, arrived and departed on time this morning with good business in and out.

The T. H. Davis departed for Ashland, on Cumberland river, yesterday afternoon. She will bring out a big tow if the river does not get too low for her to come out with it. Bill Gupton went out as her pilot.

Business was very good on the wharf today. River still falling. Cloudy and raining at intervals, southeast wind.

The Pittsburgh coal combine have let contracts for building seven big powerful towboats, work commencing in early spring.

The Alice Brown, with a big tow of empties, passed up for Pittsburgh this morning.

The Dick Fowler cleared for Cairo on this morning with a good trip.

The City of Clifton is receiving a big trip for Tennessee river. She leaves at 5 p. m. Capt. Jim Till, in command and Eugene Robinson, first clerk and Tub Edmundson, second.

The H. W. Burtford left this afternoon for Nashville with a big trip.

Billy Crozier is at his post of duty again in the office of the Dick Fowler, after a visit of several weeks at Hot Springs.

Capt. John Winfrey arrived from Hickman this morning and left for Dover on the Burtford today on a visit to his family.

Sam R. Smith, who several years ago was a steamboat clerk on several of the packets running in and out of this port, has the largest collection of steamboat pictures of any man in the United States. He has been diligently engaged for years in accumulating them and nearly all of them were taken by him with his kodak. He presented Capt. John Massengale with a calendar for this year with the photograph of the St. Louis and Tennessee river packets.

BIG EXAMINATION.
MOST APPLICANTS FOR COUNTY SCHOOL CERTIFICATES IN SOME TIME.

The county schools are closing rapidly, and will probably all be over by the end of this month.

County Superintendent J. W. Hughes will hold the semi-annual examination for county school certificates at the county court house here on Thursday, January 31st, and there will be about twenty-five applicants for the examination. This is the most in quite a while.

THE SUPERVISORS.
THEY WILL PARTIALLY FINISH BY TOMORROW EVENING.

The supervisors of the county tax books will finish the first part of their work tomorrow and adjourn for the customary five days. They will then reconvene to hear protests from those whose assessment has been raised.

HORSE CASE LEFT OPEN.
A suit of A. B. Currell against E. M. Willett, for $10 damages, was left open until Monday by Justice Barker yesterday afternoon. The plaintiff claims he bought a horse from the defendant for $40 on condition that it was sound and gentle, which he claims it has proved not to be.

The board of health met in President W. T. Graves' office yesterday afternoon, but as the council has not passed on the health officer salary matter, the board transacted no business.

MEDICAL SOCIETY MEETS.
The Paducah Medical and Surgical society meets tonight with Dr. Della Caldwell, the secretary, who will read a paper on "Tuberculosis."

STAGE NOTES.
Yvette Guilbert has been very ill, but is recovering. She has been occupying a villa at Vaux overlooking the Seine. In private life Miss Guilbert is Mrs. Schiller.

It is expected now that the company of the Theater Francaise will be able to perform in its new home some time in December, several months earlier than expected.
